Best Friend

Molly looked down on a grave. This was her darkest day. Not because of the rain and there's no sun. It's's her darkest day because she have to come here. "You have been in my life since we was four. You been with me in my ups and downs. You was always my best friend." she whispered as she a tear fell from her eye. She held the two red roses closer to her body. "You was my everything. You never left my side. You was like a sister to me. I love you so much because you're my best friend."whispered Molly. The rain started again. It was the sixth time. Molly didn't noticed it. "How can all those people doubted you? You saved me so many times. You was much more than a pretty girl. Much more than a ditz. Much more than a superheroine. You was my friend." she said. More tears fell. They fell on the roses. Molly didn't even bothered to wipe the tears off her face. "Oh Serena, how can you keep this secret from me? One part of me hate you while the other side of me understands." Molly murmred. She put the roses down. "You mean the world to me. Out of all the popular people to be friends with, you choosed me. You always hear me when I called. Even chased me when I was falling. You was closer to me than my mother. I give up my life just to bring you back to proect the world." said Molly. She walked away. "Good-bye, Sailor Moon." she said with out looking back.
